A local company you can rely on

We know you put everything into making your food business successful. So when you're looking for someone to supply one of the most important aspects of your business, your ingredients, you're looking for someone who takes your business as seriously as you.

Someone just around the corner, willing to go the extra mile and help out whenever they can. Someone who can deliver all the fresh, dry-store and frozen ingredients you need and do it safely, responsibly and with integrity. Someone with niche local and regional products that make your menu unique and keep your existing customers returning and new ones talking.

In short you need someone you can trust, because they're local and so their success is ultimately built around yours.

A local approach to supplying food

We've worked with food businesses like yours in South East England for over 60 years. In that time we've learnt from our customers you don't have to be big to be great. In fact, our family-orientated way of doing business is often welcomed by those customers who sometimes feel they don't get the personal service they'd like from other food service companies. This is why we think it's important to give you a regular delivery driver on your route. This means you not only get to know them, and more importantly, they get to know you. It goes beyond just understanding the best time to deliver or place to park; it's about being personally involved if you need help. And that goes for our team at the office too. Many of our office team have worked with KFF for years and know the business and the product range inside out. You'll probably get to know them by name and they'll be available until 5:30pm each night and will be able to place an order for delivery the next day. But our small local supplier approach does not mean you miss out on any reassurance you need to run your business safely. You'll have peace of mind knowing that we are backed by one of the largest food service companies in the world. This means that all our food and ingredients are sourced, stored, handled, labelled and delivered to the highest industry standards. It also means you can rely on us to always be around so you can plan for the future and watch your business flourish.

Local food for local menus

Everyone likes to know where their food has come from, which is why provenance on your menu has long been important. Locally sourced ingredients and products can elevate your menu from the rest of the competition and create real uniqueness and difference.

Putting local and regional food on your menu supports smaller artisan food producers. It gives your customers flavours and experiences they may not be able to get anywhere else. All this helps your business become a destination venue.

But getting hold of local artisan ingredients isn't always easy. Sourcing and getting it delivered is time-consuming, and you always need the reassurance that it is safe to serve. Our range of food and drink has always included smaller and artisan food producers from across the region. In fact, we stock many products that you can't get delivered by other food service suppliers.

Why? Because we think it's important. Important to give your menu the competitive edge you need. Important to support grassroots food providers. But most of all, we do it because, like you, we simply love the region we serve and the delicious food and drink that comes from it.
