Gut Health

Gut health explained

Your body contains trillions of microbes, most of which are beneficial. The most dense population is in your gut, where they play a critical role in digestion, immune function and weight regulation hence the term good bacteria.

Tips for gut health

- Fruit, vegetables, pulses, nuts and wholegrains feed healthy bacteria
- Probiotic foods, such as live yoghurt, might encourage more microbes to grow
- Choose extra-virgin olive oil over other fats when you can. It contains the highest number of microbe-friendly polyphenols

Breakfast on the rise...

The breakfast category is back in growth once again!

In 2017, sales of breakfast products fell by 2.4%, but last year the top three breakfast categories were all in year-on-year value growth.*

Within the breakfast category there is a continuing health trend which establishments should be looking to tap into. Kff now stock a variety of lines that will help you and your business satisfy this shift in consumer demand, below are a variety of natural and low calorie breakfast options now available.

Perkier bars are a great healthy grab and go breakfast option with a variety of health benefits. We have recently launched the NEW quinoa porridge pots, (See Page 17) all are a rich source of protein and fibre to help kick start your customers day.

Love Smoothies are packed full of nutrients, healthy fats, vegetables and fruits. No prep, no cooking, no clean up, just blend and go! (See Page 27)

Avocado is now an iconic breakfast offering, simply serve on toast for a firm favourite amongst those seeking that healthy alternative to the full English.

Poached Eggs are lower in calories and fat than eggs that have been scrambled, baked, or fried, yet they still deliver a great tasting high in protein, low in fat breakfast offering. Our free range shaped poached eggs are perfect when looking for consistency and quality every time.
